

wholly at your service, and were it at the utmost hazard of my life, I could joyfully do any thing to serve you."

The merchant, after returning thanks to his friend for these generous offers, told him what he had been relating to him was a tale invented only as a lesson for his son, to teach him how to distinguish between a real and a pretended friend.

MORAL.

*A real Friend is an invaluable Treasure;
a Friend loveth at all Times, and a Brother is born for Adversity.*

A REMARKABLE INSTANCE OF FILIAL PIETY.

Dutiful Children are Blessings from a

ABOUT ten or twelve years ago an officer of the guards, being in on a recruiting party, made a short stay at Chelmsford, where he picked up several recruits.

The evening preceeded the day appointed for his departure from that town, a young man, of a most engaging figure